SPECIAL FREIGHT PROPOSITION.

The prices quoted in our lists are low and are necessarily F. O. B. Louisville; but, if ten per cent. (10%) is added to the remittance to cover freight, we will ship four sash or more, or any greenhouse, freight prepaid, to any railroad station in the United States east of the Dakotas, Wyoming, Colorado and Texas, or to Ontario, Canada. If the freight proves to be less than the extra remittance, we will refund the excess when the bill of lading is forwarded. To customers west of the above line we will offer special freight terms on application. Immediate shipment of sash or bed frames will be made. Greenhouses are forwarded within two days after receipt of order.

Sunlight Sash, Single Glazed

In some more southerly sections the double glazing of the sash is not always necessary; and even in the north there are times in the fall and spring when single-layer sash may be used without covering with mats and shutters.

The Sunlight Sash may be glazed on the upper side only, and is still better than other sash—thicker, stronger and far easier to glaze and to repair. The bottom layer of glass can be inserted at any time and then a double-glazed sash is completed.

Whether your order is for single-glazed or double-glazed sashes, the glazing equipments for both layers are sent with the shipment.

Sash Complete Double Glazed "Pony"

Five Glazed "Pony" Sashes, Boxed

The "Pony" Sash are made like the standard size, except that they are only 3 feet wide by 3 feet 2 1/2 inches long, instead of 3 x 6 in size. There are three rows of glass on each side, the middle row being 12 inches wide and glazed the 12 x 10 way, and the side rows the 10 x 12 way. Thus they give a maximum sun exposure. These sash are much used where space is limited. They are just as effective as the larger sash, as far as they reach, and are just the thing for boys, girls and women, being handy and light. These are the sash used on the sides of our ready-made greenhouses.

Shipments of Sashes, Frames and Greenhouses.

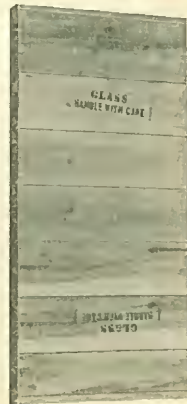

The illustrations herewith show the bundles made up for shipment. Glazed standard sash usually go in bundles of 3 or 2—mostly 3; top frames go in 2 bundles, one containing the ends and cross bars and the other the front and back. Breakage seldom happens and the purchaser never loses, as we remit on receipt of vouchers for losses and collect from the railroads.

Note—Cost of any other outfits of sash and frames can be easily found by adding cost of frames to the cost of the sash desired to match. The sash and a top frame make a cold frame outfit. The sash and both top frame and pit frame make a hot-bed outfit. Frequently the pit frame can be advantageously made at home. Our catalogue indicates how it is made.

Weights—Standard 3 x 6 sash, unglazed, weigh 22 lbs. each; glazed, a crated bundle of two double-glazed sash weighs 152 lbs.; a bundle of three, 210 lbs. Glass weighs 65 lbs. to a box holding 50 square feet—60 panes of 10 x 12 or 90 panes of 10 x 8.

A Five-Sash Outfit will do for a large family or a small market garden. A Two-Sash Outfit will turn out a surprising lot of plants. But growers on a large scale can profitably use hundreds of sashes—the more the better, for they always pay if kept at work. And double-glazed sash come pretty near taking care of themselves.

Sunlight Sash Greenhouses

The Sunlight Greenhouses are made ready to set up on simple foundations prepared for them. The roof is covered with the standard size sash (3' x 6' x 1 3/4") and the sides with "Pony" sash (3' x 3' 2 1/2"). The ends are fitted with special double-glazed frames and a door. The frame work is assembled as far as practicable for shipment and one man and helper can set up the house in a few hours. It may be set at ground level, with a sunken path for access, or it may be set on frame, brick or concrete walls. When the house is out of commission the sash may be used elsewhere. There are eight standard and eight "Pony" sash, either single or double-glazed, on a house 10' 11" wide and 12' 3" long, which is the unit size. Any number of these houses may be joined, and the connecting frames are included. Of course, however many there are in connection, there need be only one door end and one rear end.

These houses have proven highly successful everywhere and are a small, safe investment.

The lean-to houses are half width and are intended to lean against some other building, with the entrance therefrom.
